THE CONSOLIDATION.

COMMENTS OF THE SOUTH CAROLINA PRESS.

There is no royal road to the West from Carolina any more than there is a royal road to learning, and the directors of the Carolina, Cumberland Gap and Chicago Railroad know it. The enterprise is in the hands of men in whom the Carolina public have confidence, and a more capable president for such an undertaking could not easily be found. Governor Hagood has great executive ability, and in his management will combine activity with system and caution. The road begins at Aiken, and will run through Edgefield, Abbeville, Anson and Pickens counties, crossing the Blue Ridge at Eastatoe Gap, and connecting at Livingston, Ky., with the vast system of Western lines. It will bring an important and thriving section of South Carolina within easy reach of markets on the coast, besides forming a great through line that will make the whole State throbbing with commercial energy. The contractors agree to build and equip 100 miles of railroad a year, until the whole 400 miles shall be completed, and the work will begin at Aiken, within ninety days. The Charleston Jetties will have been completed and this will be the finest point on the South Atlantic, when the last spike is driven in Kentucky. The plans of the President and his directors will, we presume, be made known soon, and we risk nothing in saying that the people cannot, in their own interest, give too much encouragement to the new line.

Tri Junctain Uno

THREE IN ONE.

How often when walking along the streets do we turn to bestow an admiring glance upon a neatly dressed school boy. And hear too, remarks from other natives highly complimentary to the child's parents. I have often wondered whether the good people who thus admiringly express an opinion upon a neatly attired boy, ever think of visiting that they can cause the same encouraging remarks made of their boys. I have just received a large lot of Tri Junctain Uno in Uno.

GEO. C. WILLIAMS,

THE ONE PRICE CLOTHIER

Three IN ONE.

Which is the very latest NOVELTY IN BOYS CLOTHING

It Consists of an Over Garment Suit and Cap all of the same material, and possesses a striking neat appearance. It is the correct thing, not only for play but also for dress, and is also a complete out fit for street purposes. They are also manufactured with a view to DURABILITY AND ECONOMY and at the price at which the

THE APPALLING DEGRADATION OF POLITICS SEEN BY MR. TALMAGE.

New York, Oct. 8.—The Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, pastor of the Brooklyn Tabernacle, preached this morning on the "Degradation of Modern Politics," his text being taken from Jeremiah xix, 6: "This place shall no more be called Tophet, but the valley of slaughter." He said: This was Gehenna on the suburbs of Jerusalem, a place where the carcasses of beasts were cast and the offal of the city. Perpetual fires were burning there to hinder it from breeding pestilence. It was a God-forsaken spot and has by religious writers and speakers of all ages been used as a symbol of perdition. I shall use it as a symbol of modern politics. But instead of being in the suburbs of this Gehenna is now in the center of all our towns and cities. Its carcasses rot on the steps of the city halls and its fires hiss and simmer and crackle through the long night of political corruption and those who have seen the bodies, the minds and souls of men going down under its pestilential influence can see that, like the valley of Hinnom, spoken of in the text, it may well be called the valley of slaughter. The present degradation of State and National politics is appalling.

The purity of American politics has never been anything to boast of. It has been a long scene of security and delinquency.

But the last year from October, 1881, to October 1882, seems to me to have been the blackest year of American politics. I give some illustrations. First, the Yorktown funeral. On the 19th of October, 1881, the British forces under Cornwallis surrendered to Washington and the long agony of our revolutionary fathers was ended. Last October the continent was to be celebrated. The descendants of eminent foreigners, who had assisted us in the achieving of American independence, arrived as our guests. Appropriate ceremonies were promised, and at the quaint village of Yorktown many people assembled. The Congress of the United States had voted money for the proper observance. Many good people went and came, preserving their respectability. With many of our public men it was a drunken carousal. They smoked and drank and insulted unoffending men and women until the scene of 1781 was not more glorious than the scene of 1881 was infamous. They saluted the French flag and the English flag and the American flag. But all the flags of all the nations there present could not cover up the shame of that debauchery. Look at the wine bills and the whisky bills and the cigar bills, and then look into the columns of your daily papers of last October and read the story of that occasion, gotten up by politicians, controlled by politicians and ended by politicians and everlastingly benighted by politicians.

I draw a second illustration from the Garfield funeral carousal, reaching from Washington to Cleveland. While the whole nation was sick with sorrow after the worst disaster that ever befel any country, there were public men who at public expense guzzled and swilled and staggered on the way to Cleveland, after they got to Cleveland and on their way home from Cleveland. Read the wine bills and the whisky bills of that occasion which you and I helped to pay for if we have paid our taxes. Cleveland, one of the most beautiful cities of all the earth, never had so much drunkenness and debauchery as the night before Garfield's burial, when the mayors and common council and Congressmen of cities and States were there waiting for the obsequies.

It is to me an encouraging sign that the two political parties seem split beyond reconstruction. That the Republican party has a very serious split no one will deny. For the present the split in the Democratic party seems healed, but if you have any idea that because Tammany is silent Tammany is dead, you make grievous miscalculation. Wait till they come to a distribution of offices. I think that 1884 will begin a new order of things. I wish that a new party could be organized. I would have its first principle the recognition of the eternal God in the affairs of men and governments. The trouble is we have no God recognized in American politics. We have a devil; yea a whole cohort of evil spirits, the devil of office seeking, the devil of wastefulness, the devil of falsehood, the devil of injustice—but no God. Plenty of gin, plenty of old rye, plenty of schnapps, plenty of fraud, plenty of legislative outrage and Congressional swindle, but no God. I never want to see any union between church and state in this country, but I do want to see a party who will openly and without any disguise or cant recognize the God in whose name Columbus took possession of this country, and in whose name Washington
